You enter the house into the 4m² entrance hall which leads to the main living area of 42m². You know about the view of the mountains so we'll talk of the wood burner which will provide heat on winters evenings after a day skiing nearby and of the spacious fitted kitchen where you will prepare delicious snacks as well as meals for friends and family.

The property is accessed via an automated gateway where the path leads to a big garage (60m²) equipped with two doors allowing you to park two vehicles side by side. Inside, there is a 7m² insulated office. A 14m² garden shed is also present for storage of bikes, firewood, skis etc.

The garden is spacious with a north and a south facing terrace. There are many trees including a magnificent olive tree. A smaller shed and a rainfall recuperation barrel are also present.

The roof is covered in tile. The wainscotting is PVC. There is glass wool insulation and cellulose wadding. The house is built on a crawlspace. Windows are PVC double glazed. There are automated roller shutters in the living room and wooden shutters on the bedrooms windows. Heating is provided by the wood burner and completed by electric radiators. There is a 200 litre electric powered hot water storage tank. The washroom and toilet have an extractor fan. The individual sewage system is up to current regulations at time of publication.
